

THEFT OF PACKAGES DELIVERED BY UPS, FEDEX, AND USPS.

There have been incidents where packages delivered to homes by United Parcel Service, Federal Express and United States Postal Service have been stolen from porches after being delivered. There is some evidence perpetrators follow the trucks when they enter a neighborhood and then steal the packages once they are delivered.

There are several things you can do that will assist in deterring these thefts:

1. If you see people following a UPS, FedEx, or USPS truck when they are in a neighborhood, please call 911 immediately.
2. If possible, consider having packages of high value delivered to your work location. (if your company allow this)
3. Consider mandating that packages, especially ones of high value, be signed for by someone at your home. This may prevent them from being left on your porch or stolen.
4. The following websites can also give information on how to have a package delivered to a different location or how to track a package.
5. You can also have a package held at a local site for safekeeping for you to pick up at a later time. (some restriction may apply) CHECK OUT THESE WEBSITES FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:
